

Wednesday Challenge Form

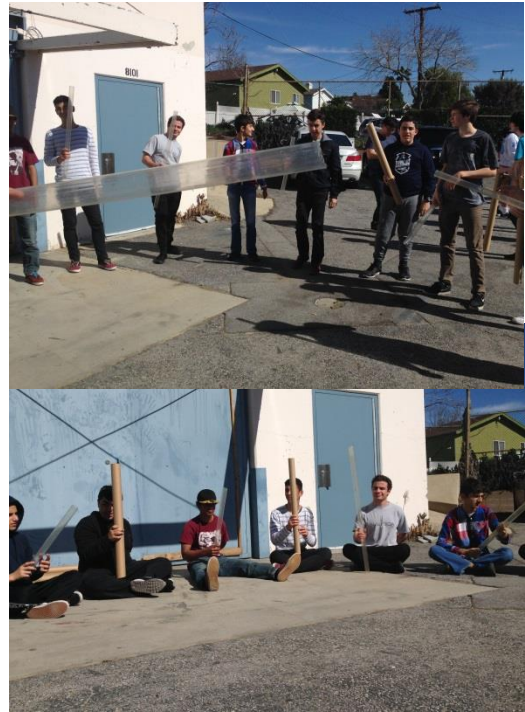

Group Members: half the class (nick's team)

Problem Statement: In a similar fashion to the marble race, we had to use teamwork to toss tubes around a circle. We can use only our right hand and toss to the left. Everyone has a tube that they pass. There are three rounds: 1. sitting, 2. standing, 3. standing, alternating passes. Team must continue in a stage until everyone could catch the tube. A mistake in the 2nd or 3rd stage results in a total start over from the 1st stage.

Approach:

To start Keilah, would count for us to toss. At the third round he suggested having alternating people facing either in or out of the circle.

Solution: We had a clear leader, practiced beforehand, and we made the last stage easier by having some people facing outward.

Lessons Learned: Teamwork and encouragement are key for a successful solution. Yelling and negative comments leaves teammates hurt and producing worse results.
